Dear 21GRAMS hiring team,

I am applying for the Account Supervisor role because it brings me back to work I know well: staying close to pharma clients, turning brand priorities into clear plans, and keeping internal teams moving through regulated delivery. 21GRAMS's focus on making healthcare feel more human also fits how I have worked across account management, UX, and product strategy. I start with the people the work needs to help, then make the process clear enough to execute.

For more than seven years, I managed Fortune 500 pharma and healthcare clients with $2M-$50M+ budgets. As one of two consumer account leads on FCB Health's largest pharma account, I worked across TV, radio, digital, gaming, Times Square, unbranded campaigns, brand planning, and MLR review. I translated client and brand priorities into briefs, creative feedback, production requirements, timelines, and MLR-ready deliverables across account, creative, UX, and development teams. That work depended on client trust, clear communication, and steady coordination when priorities shifted.

My recent work also fits Real Chemistry's interest in practical AI. At Hedgehox, I turn pharma agency needs into tools for MLR claim review, brief intake, scoping, review routing, submission capture, and FDA signal monitoring. The work keeps me close to the same questions account teams face: how to clarify the ask, route review, surface risk early, and make a tool easier to trust. At Kinesso, I led experience and design-system work for enterprise analytics used by 7,000+ people across 22 brands and helped scale product design from 2 to 30.

I would bring 21GRAMS direct pharma account experience and regulated marketing judgment, plus a practical view of how AI can support agency teams without replacing human review. I would welcome the chance to discuss how that background could help your clients feel well supported and help internal teams deliver strong work.
