SUMMARY

Eight years in agency account management took me from Account Coordinator to Account Supervisor, leading Fortune 500 client work with brand budgets up to $20M. I managed relationships, scopes, reporting, and delivery across agency teams and vendors. Since then, I've grown a UX team from 2 to 30, led research and product decisions, and built AI products that reached production. I'm returning to account management with a stronger grasp of both the client relationship and the product behind it.
